“ My Aunt Dee Dee just lived the next street over from us in Grove City. She gave me my first real birth stone necklace when I was 12. I still wear it to this day and I think of her when I put it on. I remember she told me at the ripe old age of 8 that I had a responsibility to look after my cousins and always do the right thing. Being the oldest grandchild I took that responsibility very seriously. I babysat often for my cousin Ed and watched over him like a mother hen. She would come over to watch us perform in our garage in the summers. She smiled as we sang off key and danced around like nuts. She never discouraged our dreams of becoming superstars. I know she was proud when I graduated from college and became a teacher. I regret I become too busy with my life as an adult but she knew looking out for my dad (her older brother) was a job in itself. I will miss her and so will my dad. I guess I thought she would always be around.

“ My Aunt Dee Dee use to live on the street over from us in Grove City. She gave me my first real birth stone necklace when I was 12, which I still have and wear. I think of her every time I put it on. I was the oldest grandchild and she would often tell me a had a responsibility for my younger cousins. At Thanksgiving time she would have me read a prayer or poem before we ate. I was 7 or 8 years old. I practiced and practiced to make sure it was perfect. She often would come to our garage to watch us put on shows for the neighborhood. I always wondered what she thought. She never let on when we sang off key or dance goofy like. She would just smile at us as we dreamed of super stardom. I babysat often my cousin Ed and was proud to say my Uncle Ed was a police officer. She was it seemed of me when I graduated from college and became a teacher. I will miss her as does my Dad already.
