“ I joined the Morton English Department in 1967. There was this nice looking woman with gray hair who drove a big Cadillac. I could tell by her demeanor that I didn't want to cross her. She would kill me.

Two years later I'm on the executive board of the Morton Teachers Union along with Jane. I am still alive...and president of the union. This year, 1969, we would be taking a strike vote. After I addressed the members (and received a standing ovation), Jane, who was seated on the stage in back of me, slipped me a note. Two words. "Tre Bien." Over fifty years later, I am still thrilled by her kindness with that simple act.

Please accept my sympathy for the passing of your sister. I greatly value her friendship and honor her memory. Dear Jane, may she rest in peace.
