

Kathryn Kerr Childress

June 7, 1941 - January 12, 2014

Martha Kathryn Kerr Childress, age 72 of Ft. Myers, FL went to be with God on the 12th of January 2014. Kathryn, raised in Greenwood, Mississippi, spent most of her life in Jacksonville, Alabama, where she was the director of the Jacksonville Public Library.

Married to Dr. Ted Childress, professor of history at Jacksonville State University, she had one son, David. In her retirement, she and Ted moved to Fort Myers, Florida, to be near David, who was a middle school teacher and is the training officer for the international airport fire department there.

Always a lover of books, she published four novels while in Fort Myers.

She is preceded in death by her father, L.J., her mother, Martha, and her brother Jimmy.

She is survived by Ted, David and his son Terry, her sister, Melissa Rumfelt, of Leesburg, GA, her brother, David Kerr, of Flora, MS, and many nieces, nephews, cousins, and friends.

Services will be held at West Point Memorial Gardens, in West Point, Mississippi on Friday, January 17, 2014 at 10 AM.

The family asks in lieu of flowers that donations be given to your local "Friends of the Library".
