“ Jackie and Ron were one of the first couples I met when I moved to Estero in 2015, not knowing a soul. Ron was an exemplary host, always making me feel welcome and part of this new community. He shared conversations easily. His devotion to Jackie was always apparent. Warm memories of Ron will sustain his family and friends in these months ahead.

“ Ron Gall and I shared a passion for cooking and entertaining. Gathering friends around the table to share a story, political view or philosophical perspective, and a good laugh was the norm. We swapped recipes on more than one occasion.

When we lived in IL I attended the same church as Ron and Jackie. Together we participated in a small group Bible study. It was so heartwarming when they welcomed my husband into the discussion, embracing his perspective as a man raised in a Jewish household. And during the time when my parents lived with us, they would sometimes extend invitations to them. Welcoming all was Ron and Jackie's way.

Moving away from IL made our interactions less frequent. However, whenever we'd reunite, it would seem as if no time had passed at all. That's the beauty of true friendship.

Ron Gall was a gentle, kind soul. We are saddened by his sudden passing, Rest in peace, dear friend!

“ Memories of Ron seem to revolve around food, music, family and faith along with his great love of his wife, Jackie. They were a true team, a partnership of love and caring. How we loved our times together in Michigan at our cottage, sitting in the front porch with our books, wine, lively conversation, sharing memories, present joys and future hopes and dreams. There will be an empty rocking chair on that porch forever preserved for Ron. And every time I make one of his recipes , I will rejoice that I knew and loved this wonderful man.
